Airhead!

The diary of an incompetent air-con apprentice...

MONDAY

OMG! Max's dodgy dealings finally caught up with him - he's done a runner! Rumour has it he's teamed-up in Brazil with his swindling car-dealer mate, 'Second-Hand' Carlos... So my apprenticeship with Al-Cool is over... But hey! It's summer - time to party!

TUESDAY

"Right, son", said dad today, "Time we had a little chat...Your year's apprenticeship at Al-Cool was a complete bloody disaster, wasn't it? Don't deny it!"
"Well, yes... But I didn't go to university to end up working with a cowboy like Max"
"Ah yes... Your degree - that I paid for! - The History of Film Studies... What exactly did you do in those 3 years? Watch movies?"
"Well, not all 3 years... Mostly we studied how film studies have been studied since - well, since there were film studies"

"And that's useful for a career, is it?"
"Well, yes, if you want to be a film critic."

"And do you?"
"Well not really, but - AARGH!!"
Dad hadn't slapped me since 1996, when I threw my sister's Tamagotchi into the fire on a camping holiday in the Dordogne. So I knew this was serious. Our 'chat' ended with me agreeing to apply to Penguin for a job. Soooo unfair! Still, Penguin are a leading business here - they'll appreciate my qualities! And at least it'll keep dad off my back. Daren't risk losing his monthly allowance.

FRIDAY

Penguin replied today. Not good. Dad won't like it -

Thank you for your application for a position with Penguin. Unfortunately we only take staff with relevant qualifications, so we suggest you seek employment better-suited to your degree - although we are at a complete loss as to what that might be. Nonetheless, we are aware of your year's apprenticeship with Al-Cool, and would like to express our gratitude for your contribution to that business, which we understand was integral to its demise.

Coolest regards,
The Penguin team

Those superior bs! Well maybe I should just start my own rival air-con & solar business... After all - how difficult could it be?

That's All, Folks!

Don't get an airhead, get an expert!
