

Airhead!

The diary of an incompetent air-con apprentice...

MONDAY

Awesome news! Went past Penguin today – and they've closed down! I rushed to the office to tell Max. He was on a real downer after we'd half-destroyed Mr. Fynepoynt's villa last week (tho luckily it's Serghie the builder who's being sued), but he danced for joy at the news: "Bloody BRILLIANT!! I knew those smart-arses wouldn't last, wiv their high-n'-mighty 'mission statement', their blah-blah 'commitment to customer service'! You can't make that stuff work in the Algarve – it's all about taking the dosh and movin' on. Stick with me, son, you'll see – with Penguin cleared-out, Al-Cool are gonna clean-up!"

He almost yelled "Yee-ha!"... What a cowboy. Still, it's good news for me – my future is assured!

TUESDAY

Max took the day off to play golf and celebrate. No such luck for me – sooooo unfair! Still, at least he's giving me responsibility.... He said: "With Penguin gone we can really muscle-in and grab the business... I wantcha to get out for the rest of the week and circulate Al-Cool flyers anywhere you can think of – bars, restaurants, stuff 'em in post boxes, under car windscreen wipers..."

"Er, OK... but get out where?"
"Just get out!"

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY

The freedom of the open road! Been out for two days delivering leaflets – great fun! And I got flirting with a really hot receptionist at a beauty salon where they do some kind of waxing from Brazil... (?) Though she seemed to find it strange when I said I'd be back to see her again once I've grown a moustache...

Meanwhile Max has been in cocky spirits. All is well with the world!

FRIDAY

OMG! Penguin have moved to larger premises! I was driving through Almancil today and saw they're now at the west end of town by the last roundabout, in a bright yellow building with a huge Penguin sign. When I told Max he went ballistic with me – well it's hardly my fault, is it? He yelled something extremely offensive and unrepeatable but suffice to say is physically impossible... (being single, one tends to try most things...)
